

Árpád Maczelka

project assistant, Project Office, National Széchényi Library, Budapest

I got my degree “IT Librarian with specialization on content management” at the University of Szeged, in 2009. I began to work as librarian for the Hungarian Electronic Library at the Departments of Electronic Library Services of the National Széchényi Library until 2017. Here I could participate in an EU Project called Civic Epistemologies: Development of a Roadmap for Citizen Researchers in the Digital Culture from 2014 to 2016. The project aimed to develop and validate a Roadmap for the use of e-Infrastructures to support the participation of European citizens in research on cultural heritage and digital humanities. Since then I have a special interest for the topics of citizen science and crowd sourcing. From 2015 to 2017 I worked for the Mikes Kelemen program as an on site researcher in Melbourne, Australia and Sarasota, Florida. The goal of this Program is to preserve the diaspora’s material heritage, collect its elements in a systematic manner, transfer them to Hungary and make provision for their appropriate utilization. From 2017 I work as a project assistant for the Project Office of the National Széchényi Library.
